

Arts Through It All

At a time when we've lost so much, we can keep the art, culture and scientific discovery that sustains us by reconnecting with its value in our lives. We're featuring the creators, connectors and collaborators who help us make a better world.

A life well lived carries on

There is a deep interconnection between culture and community. Wilbur Flachman knew it.

So, when the native Iowan settled with his wife in Westminster in 1961, he set about making that connection tangible and visible. Flachman passed away in September. But the foundations for art and culture he built in the north metro area will continue on. According to his daughter, that's just the way he wanted it.

“It just goes back to his sense of community and his certainty that arts are a representation of who we are,” said Angie Flachman. “He knew in his heart that arts are able to unify us.”

We fund culture.

SCFD provided $66 million in funding to nearly 300 cultural organizations across the seven-county metro area in 2019. Each year, we publish an annual report so you can learn more about the SCFD and its value.
